

Acupuncture Needles

Acupuncture needles are sterile, packaged in foil cards, and are dispensed with other medical sharps after use. The needles are very fine and flexible; the ones shown are only 0.2 millimeter in diameter. These are composed of a stainless steel shaft with a copper handle, but other combinations of metals, or metal with plastic, are also used.