

VOM Treatment

Here, a dog receives an adjustment with the Activator tool. The tool makes a noise best described as a click or a snap, but once the animals realize it doesn't hurt, they don't seem terribly bothered by it. For those with extreme noise phobia, a period of desensitization to the noise precedes each session until they grow accustomed, but most do just fine.